How DJ Got To Sleepy Hollow By Z As Told By DJ

It all started when I was lost at sea. Then fishermen came. They tried to catch me! I tried to run away but they caught me (sigh).

I was trapped in a cage. The fishermen sold me. But it was not too bad because the guy who bought me wasn't mean. His name was Mr. Johnson. We went to Sleepy Hollow. He said "I will give you to the winner." In my mind I thought "a winner to what"? A few days later I was on something called the news show. He presented me and said the winner is Mrs. Elliot's class. Then I was brought to Mrs. Elliot's class. They were thinking where to put me. So they just put me on the American flag. I stayed there for a few days. That is how I got to Sleepy Hollow.

A Brain By "C"

You use a brain
every day.

It's not there
to look pretty.

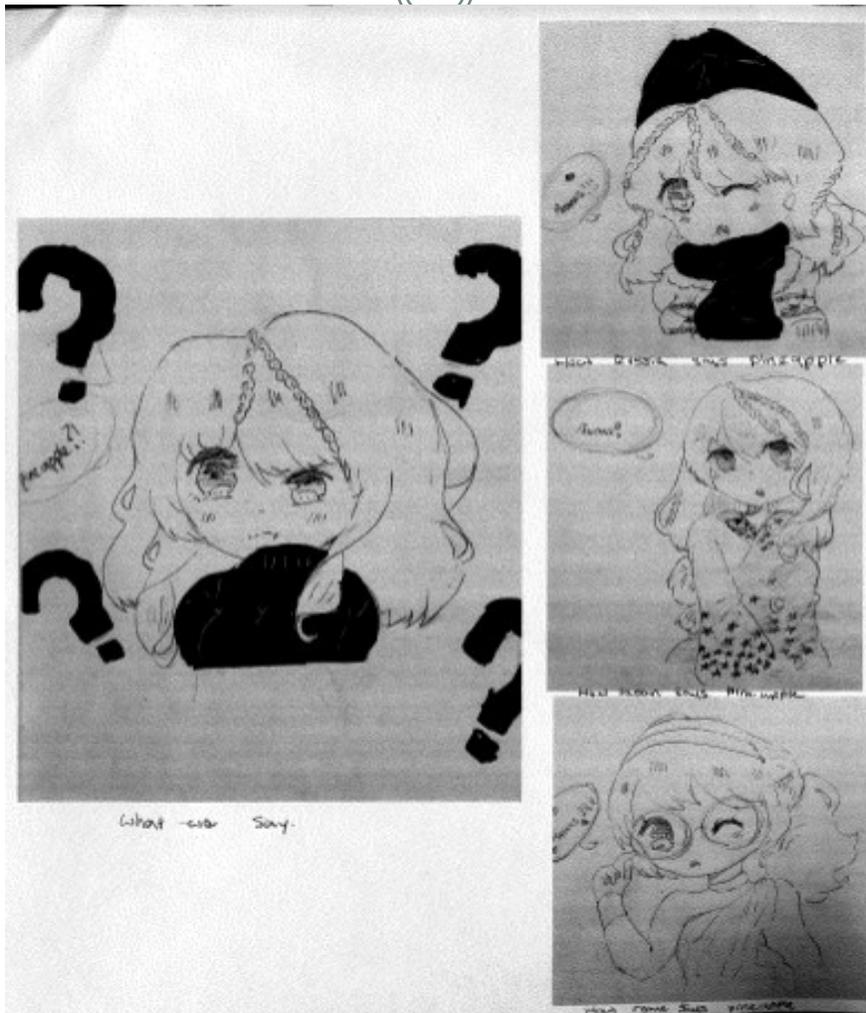

But sometimes,
my brain stops
working.

So bang !

My teacher comes along and bops
me in the head.

Now it's working again.

I'm going to tell you why we shouldn't use animals for clothes. It is very harmful. Remember almost everyone is wearing an animal even though they don't know it. But there are ways you can help them. We shouldn't use animals for clothes because it is harmful for animals. Each year millions of animals are killed for their fur and their skin. In rabbit farms rabbits live alone in dark shacks. Every three months workers pull out the rabbit's hair. Geese that are used for feathers never get to go outside, swim, fly, or raise babies. This is unhealthy for the geese. In Canada sealers kill baby seals. These seals are normally three months or younger in age. Cows are kept in big barns until they are sent off to the slaughter house where they are hung upside down and their throats are slit. That's all to get some leather. Workers that work at sheep farms normally cut off the sheep's tails and poke holes in their ears both without pain killers. When sheep get sheared people often do it as fast as possible so they can get more money.

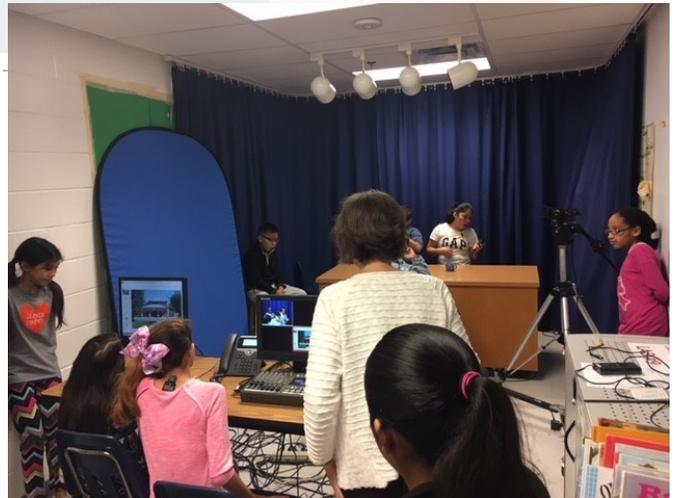

This often causes them to accidentally shear off some of the sheep's ears.

Animals are used for a lot of different clothes. Down is a feather that comes from geese and ducks. Some countries in Asia use dogs and cats for leather instead of cows. Rabbits fur is used for coats, sweaters, gloves, and scarves. This is because their fur is so soft. Geese are used for bed sheets, coats, pillows and sleeping bags. Sheep are used for their wool and skin. Cows are used for boots and other leather shoes, purses, bags, and leather jackets. Down free products are cheaper and can be found at Target. Make sure to pay attention to the labels on your shoes they all mean something. The one that has the rounded edges is leather. The same one with the diamond inside is coated leather. These are bad to buy because they come from animals. The diamond one is man made. The one that looks like a weave is textile. You can buy these. Most animal fur free clothes are cheaper than the real thing. Synthetic shoes help animals. They look the same but they aren't made from animals.

So if you buy synthetic shoes and clothes and watch labels on your shoes you can help save animals lives. Make sure when you go clothes or shoe shopping that you don't buy anything with those nasty symbols on them. If you do this you can help the millions of animals that suffer every year.

News room – behind the scenes!

Have you ever wondered how the Sleepy Hollow Channel 6 Dolphin News gets created? Four teams of seven 5th graders each rotate throughout the school year. When on duty, each team rotates amongst the different news crew jobs. On your screen in your classroom, you see the News Anchors, Weather Reporter, and Special Guests. But behind the scenes, we also have students working the cameras, switching scenes on the video mixer, running the PowerPoint slides, and scrolling the script. It's a total team effort to put the news on each school morning!

Fantastic “Paws for Books” Fair!

With snow days and spring break, this year’s book fair had a wacky schedule but still ended up being tons of fun. It was fun to guess which pet went with which teacher in our Paws for Books theme. Did you know that every purchase at the fair helps our school’s library? It’s true! By having a book fair, our school earns money towards our library – and then Mrs. Oswalt uses that money to buy new books for our collection. Many of the books from the fair are now being added to our library shelves PLUS Mrs. Oswalt has her eye on some new animal books . . . let her know if there is a particular animal you want added to our library! Thank you to everyone who supported this year’s fair!
